

God Rules, OK?

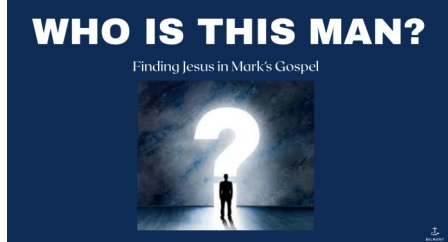

The lessons of Samuel's preparation for leadership under the supervision of Eli, and the early leadership of the people of Israel shows us the priorities of God for those who live under his rules. God opposes the proud and lifts up the humble. Those who lead God's people live according to God's rule not their own. We're called to obedience to a king who is crucified and, humbled and yet has all authority. What does obedience to this king look like? The series title raises the question – whose rule will you live under? And also provokes us to think about how different God's rule is when compared to the self-rule of the time of the Judges. Who will be your king? To whom will you listen?

'Who is this Man?'

We return to the Gospel of Mark. In the autumn, we concluded with Jesus' question 'Who do you say I am?'

We now travel from that point to Easter discovering how Jesus fulfils his calling to be the Messiah, our Saviour and our LORD. We conclude the series with our celebration of Easter.

Seeking God

The evening service this term will explore what it is to seek God from a number of different perspectives.

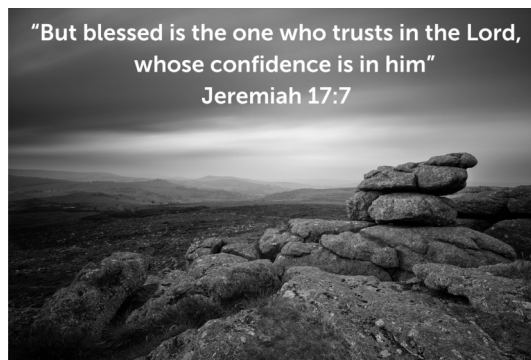

The evenings will be structured to include informal discussion and prayer. The series will aim to teach something of a biblical theology of seeking God, but also to stimulate people to seek God.
